Diodes, Inc. Ranks No. 28 in BusinessWeek's "2005 List of 100 Best Small Companies"

Westlake Village, California – June 8, 2005 – Diodes Incorporated (Nasdaq: DIOD), a leading manufacturer and supplier of high quality discrete semiconductors, today announced that for the first time the Company has been named among "The 2005 List of 100 Best Small Companies" in BusinessWeek magazine, scoring 28th in the overall ranking in the June 2005 issue. In terms of earnings growth, Diodes scored an impressive fourth rank, with annual earnings growth for the past three years of 422.7%, compared to the Top 100's average annual earnings growth for the same period of 118.9%.

BusinessWeek pulled from Standard & Poor's COMPUSTAT database of more than 10,000 publicly traded corporations and examined the top 2,200 super achievers with revenues of $50 million to $1.5 billion a year. Contenders must have a market cap of $25 million or more, a stock that trades for at least $5 a share, and be actively traded. The companies were ranked according to three measures: sales growth, earnings growth, and return on capital (average annual for the past three years).

"Our high ranking among the 100 Best Small Companies by this widely read national business magazine makes us very proud. It is a validation of our ongoing business strategies for success and our commitment to delivering innovative discrete solutions and world class customer service to our global customer base. This accomplishment is the result of Diodes' focus on achieving profitable growth by combining an expanding portfolio of value-added products and manufacturing excellence with rigorous fiscal discipline," said Dr. Keh-Shew Lu, Diodes, Inc.'s President and CEO.
